New attendees were introduced and welcomes were given out. As far as membership, as far as representatives, you need to have a teacher to come with the administration.

Several professional books are free to take that are on the back table. Please feel free to take it!!

Link in the notes that will take you to the results in the survey that was sent out. There were only 6 people that participated in it. Please look at it, and complete it as soon as you can.

Kirkmere - Students in 7th and 8th and kids who received D’s and F’s received home visit, sign up for after school from principal. 100% compliance. Tardy and sleeping in - daily robo call at 7am to get up!! Bag reports - encourage on Progress book to find out why they are getting the grades they are earning.

Bunn: Focus on data in morning meeting - shared in intervention, coffee with principal, PTO meeting notes sent home. Attendance - found Tuesday was the least attended in the week. Get two Y-Bucks for those who showed up. Kids are telling their parents they need to go to school to earn Y - bucks.

Chaney - Graduation on the 5 week review. Looking at the data that shows our students that are off track. Parent programs, like FAFSA, help us with what can we as the school stay on the path to graduation. We talk about the alternative pathways that we have imbedded into our school. Teachers forge relationships - Mentoring Program - with kids they don’t know to try to keep them on track to graduation.
Wilson- Created a Student Support Team to discuss all issues involving the data in the 5-week review. The team has members from our admin staff, support staff and other stakeholders. Created student support team - looks at the different data so everyone is getting the same message. The information flows through the BLT - sub committee only working on 5 week review data.

Assessment results: It is fine if all the students didn't take it. December 14th will be another time to take it. It is an assessment on standards that should have been covered over the course of the scope and sequences in math and ELA. The reality and results of the tests may not be what you want to see. Maybe the teachers just haven't gotten to that standard yet. We will adapt as we go. Plan for the 14th. once the standards have been determined, those standards will be sent to the teachers, and you will have an idea as to what will be assessed. How to look at reports (17-18 Interim Assessments - Reports): There are a total of 21 reports, but we are looking at the top three most important. 1. Teacher comparison report - shows teachers and how their students did on a particular assessment. 2. Response frequency report and how they did on those questions. 3. Peer report. Shows you how the other classes are doing in the SAME GRADE.

One tip from John LaPlante: Don’t filter too much because you will filter all the way out. You won’t see anything. The Rainbow donut (Overall performance) - For principals, it will show overall how the kids did. For Teacher, it only shows your kids. The link to show how to do everything in the report was sent out by John LaPlante via email. You will be able to learn how to access everything you need via this email link. For the questions that didn’t load, for the next time in December, If you know the number of the questions, let John LaPlante know so he can fix it. This time around he set the unloaded questions as extra credit for those that were able to go back into the test and redoing those questions. Some of the datum were stored on a different server, so the filter we have blocked the information. On the Response Frequency report, we can look to see what the questions were that were missed, we click on the question, and it will list the correct answer and why the students may have chosen the other answers. Student small slip reports are little slips that you can print and give out to the students. Teacher peer comparison is where you will find the standards that each question pertains to. Also, you can go into Response frequency report, scroll down to the bottom of the page, and there is a group by with a drop down box for you to choose standard. It will generate the report that details the questions by standard.

Kick Up - a place where feedback in regards to what is happening with the feedback given in the learning tours. When we look at the post conference bite size notes, we are all over the place with it (GRR). There are things in the comments that should be said to the teachers, not on the kick up tool. It needs to be used only for GRR feedback. Be specific with where teachers are and what they need to do to improve. We should not giving feedback on any part of this “framework” that we haven’t trained them on and had practice to get better. We have teachers wanting more information on what to do next to improve. They are getting feedback from three different people and a lot of it is not consistent. Tracking tool - it’ll load your data. Few things you can look through - summary it defaults to which segments you observed. It talks about areas that you have rated higher to celebrate and areas of need for work. There is a GRR rating on the back. You will get a “Heat Map.” It automatically orders the categories that are looked at. You will see there are colored ratings. This makes understanding the report a bit easier. You can look at this based on each week. As far as the component, click on a component to see how staff were rated. You can group by subject to see how well they are doing, schools (at district level), You vs. your IFS or AP: look to see if you are rating the teacher the same, too strict/lenient, etc. You can see how each teacher is doing in different areas. There are also bite-sized action steps and purpose statements. Make sure that there is a date selected. It is defaulted to 9/11/17. Additional summary - this is where you put the “other stuff.” Anything not related to GRR, but this is something you want to give feedback on, put it here.

Purpose of Kick up - provide effective feedback to help guide our teachers to do a great job with GRR.

Activity to realize that our feedback dealt with specificity and giving on track feedback vs. off track feedback. Stay away from “I like” statements. Bias vs. Unbias - don’t throw the “great jobs” and “should” in there. Although this is something that every teacher says to students, use next step strategies rather than you need to... but not giving any “on track” feedback. Give strategies to use to help with their next evaluation and next day in the classroom. Use the language from the guidance tool to craft your language. Next steps: complete learning tours with principal, AP, and IFS together; aligning feedback to the GRR guidance tools.

November 27, 2017
