   A. Superintendent’s Report: Ms. Lubomski shared that Christine Gamari is a finalist for CT Teacher of the Year honors. Only 4 teachers out of 169 districts are in this distinguished group. She welcomed Alden Paye, the new AP at Vogel-Wetmore. Ms. Lubomski acknowledged Lance Reynolds for his article about a partnership program between the THS science students and NCCC students who studied viruses together. School has started. It has been an extraordinary effort on all fronts contributing to the successful beginning of the year. The instructional piece has been a struggle, which is no one’s fault. Ms. Lubomski commended teachers for balancing Zoom and in person lessons. Staff has done a great job addressing contact tracing with the utmost respect for privacy regarding the COVID positive case. Big shout out to Torrington Health Department for all of their help. Ms. Lubomski recommended remaining in hybrid until October 16th. In Litchfield County, the positivity rate is increasing. If we were going to go in person, we would probably start with Elementary School rather than the Middle or High School. Right now, we will continue to monitor the health metrics and address the operational issues. Mr. Barlow spoke about the two COVID positive cases, Torringford and Torrington High School. He stated that there has been adjustments, corrections, and improvements regarding sanitizing/cleaning. There are plans in place for Torringford and Torrington High School for the schools to be ready for reopening. Mr. Barlow stated that we are continuing to work on checks and balances with the new sanitizer company. Mr. Fappiano asked what is difference that you are doing in these plans that you are not doing on the daily cleaning? Mr. Barlow clarified that the custodians don’t clean individual teacher desks, teacher phones, walls, entire doors, lockers etc. Those things do not get sanitized daily. Mr. Eucalitto asked why wouldn’t you consider sending Elementary back full time and doing TMS and THS hybrid? The Superintendent stated that we are not there yet, there are many considerations: social distancing and scheduling are more complex at the secondary level. We are learning through this whole process. The percentage of parents who opted for 100% distance learning: 32%. There are 62 students who are being homeschooled this year.

B. Instruction Update: Ms. Ferguson started her report with a big thank you to our teachers and support staff. “This is a huge effort and to have to engage kids remote and in person at the same time is a huge challenge. Thank you to the parents who are supporting this effort from home or remote location. We need you folks; you are our partners.” Ms. Herold spoke about IT. We now have everything that we have been missing in our supply chain; however, we are still missing some monitors that should be here by Wednesday. Ms. Herold is in the process of creating a big visual library of instructional guides for teachers, students, and parents. Ms. Fergusson shared, “One thing our teachers are doing is creating short videos to introduce a lesson or to summarize an activity - the video can be watched at any time. If a parent is unable to be with the child at the time the lesson is being delivered, the parent can watch the video when they’re able to and the student can re-watch it as much as they need to. We have created a professional development website for our staff where we are archiving these videos so teachers have access and they can work together.” Mr. Eucalitto wants to resurvey the parents one more time about how they feel sending their kids to school full time, so we can get an answer before October 16th.
C. Special Education Update: Ms. Klimaszewski presented the monthly special education summary packet. She summarized the progress from last year: There were 51 students that exited from special education. There were 14 students who moved from a self-contained to a less-restrictive program in district. Ten students returned from outplacement to an in-district program. The tuition decrease is $343,959.91. There were 49 students found eligible pre-K through grade 12 for special education. There were 11 students moving from a less restrictive in-district program to self-contained program. Five students were outplaced. There was a $96,678.63 increase in outplacement tuition. The fluctuation in residency: Students moving into Torrington with an IEP = 98 and students moving out of Torrington with an IEP = 33. Overall reduction in total out-placement costs from Sept 2019-June 2020 was $356,435.87. Currently, the district is starting with 805 identified students from pre-K to grade 12:

Total District Enrollment 9/8/2020 = 3,935
